A NUPTIAL NOVELTY.

How the Matrimonial Knot Was Tied by a Frontier Justice of the Peace.

Camping near a town in Wyoming. We secured our stock and went in. Entering the leading store of the town, I introduced myself to Mr. Stiles, one of the proprietors, and the postmaster. Stiles said: "It's now 2:30, and at 3 there's a wedding at Jonas Burton's. Old Jonas is a rough old coon that we elected a justice of the peace about a month ago, and as this will be his first attempt at a marriage I think we will see some fun. Come, go with me." We went into the old squire's cabin and found him poring over a large volume of the "Statutes of Wyoming," sweating like a horse and looking terribly anxious. After greeting us he said:

"Stiles, when galoots that got up these yer laws hadn't guption enough to last 'em over night, I've run through the blamed books a half dozen times an can't find a word about matrimony or how the h--in process is perceded with. I've just got to put the clamps on this couple, hit er miss, an if I don't yoke 'em up legal I can't help it."

Stiles explained to him about how to proceed, and the old man finally thought he could worry through in tolerable shape.

Ever long the couple appeared, followed by a crowd of citizens of the camp. The candidates stood up before the squire, who began:

"Feller citizens, this yer man and this yer woman have appeared before the court to be hitched in the legal bands of wedlock! If any galoot in the mob knows of anything that might block the game if tuck to a higher court, let him now tuck his bazoo or else keep his jaw to himself now and forevermore. All in favor of perceding as authorized by law say 'I'."

Everybody said "I."

"Contrary, 'No.'"

Nobody said "No."

"The motion's carried unanimously, an the court rules that there hain't nothing to prevent the trying of the case."

"Now," said the squire, "grip your firs."

The candidates joined hands.

"Amos Peabody, do you solemnly swear that you'll freeze to Manly for ever, and provide for her and treat her squar and white according to the rules and regulations set down to govern such cases in the laws of the United States, so help you God?"

"Yes, sir, I do, sir."

"That fixes your end of the bargain."

"Mandy Thomas, do you solemnly swear that you'll hang on to Amos for all comin time; that you'll nuss him in sickness and be squar to him in wellness; that you'll always be to him a good, true, honest, up and up wife under the penalties prescribed by the laws for the punishment of such offenses? Do you swear this, so help you God?"

"I swear 'I will'."

"Then, by the power in me vested as justice of the peace in and for this precinct, I pronounce you, Amos Peabody, husband, and you, Mandy Thomas, wife, and legalize ye to remain such now and forevermore; an ye'll stand committed till the fees and costs in the case are paid in full, an may God have mercy on your souls an bless this union with his heftiest blessin'."

The fees and costs were adjusted, and the newly made husband and wife after receiving the congratulations of the assembly departed for their cabin up the creek. - Cor. Chicago Tribune.

Her Nationality.

There came into one of the primary classes of a Brooklyn public school last week a little black eyed girl.

A glance showed that her nationality was not that of the ordinary run of school children. The rest of the urchins seemed to be aware of this, for when the teacher pleasantly asked, "What is your name, little girl?" a towhead over in the corner spoke up and said:

"Please, ma'am, she's a stick."

"A stick," asked the teacher.

"A stick."

The puzzled preceptor looked from one child to another and tried to divine what was meant. The newcomer cleared up the mystery.

"I am a Pole," said she. "That is what she means by a stick." - New York Recorder.

Uses of the Thumb.

Cornelius Ketel painted his pictures with his thumb, and it is still the picture cleaner's safest tool. When sewing was rendered easier by the invention of the thimble, or thumbell, as it was originally called, that useful article was worn upon the thumb, not the finger; and the Japanese dentist, disdaining any but nature's appliances, finds his thumb and finger all sufficing in the extraction of the most stubborn of aching teeth. - Chambers' Journal.

Deep Mourning.

Young Widow - Life has lost all its charms for me; I shall enter a convent and spend the rest of my days in mourning for my dear husband."

Officer - But, madam, it would be nothing short of suicide for a lady like yourself, so beautiful, wealthy, and thirty years of age, to -

Young Widow (interrupting) - Beg your pardon: only twenty-nine. - Der Floh.

Drumheads of Human Skin.

Writers on curious subjects often refer to a "curious will made by a certain general of Revolutionary fame" in which there is a clause providing that the skin of the testator is to be made into two drumheads. I notice that these same writers always neglect to give the name of this "general of Revolutionary fame." The fact is, the eccentric person who left this curious "last will and testament" was not a general at all, but a common everyday private, who formerly lived at Medford, Mass. The name of this patriot was Solomon Sanborn, and he was a warm friend of the now venerable doctor-poet, Oliver Wendell Holmes. In his will Sanborn left his body to Dr. Holmes on condition that the doctor would carefully remove and tan the skin, which was finally to be converted into two drumheads. These, properly fitted in a drum, were to be inscribed, one with the Declaration of Independence and the other with Pope's "Universal Prayer."

Had everything been carried out as Mr. Sanborn intended it should be, this drum was to have been presented to a local drummer, a friend of both Sanborn and Dr. Holmes, on condition that he, the drummer, repair to the foot of Bunker Hill monument on each succeeding anniversary of that famous battle and beat the soul stirring strains of "Yankee Doodle" from the drumheads of the departed patriot. The provisions were never carried out - St. Louis Republic.

Edible Fungi.

Attention is called in a London medical journal to the fact that, though there is liability to deception of a somewhat dangerous kind in using the ordinary forms of edible fungi exhibited in the market, the number of such fungi as are safe to indulge in is really greater than is commonly understood. It is necessary, however, to be informed of the qualities which distinguish the edible from the poisonous varieties, these being as follows:

A high colored, a scaly or spotted surface and tough or watery flesh are usually associated with poisonous properties, while the edible species are seldom highly colored, scaly or spotted, but usually white or brownish, and brittle on fracture - the former, moreover, growing clustered on wet or shady ground, the latter singly in dry pastures; then, too, fungi which have a bitter or styptic taste, or which burn the fauces, as well as those which yield a pungent milk, those of livid color, and such as assume various hues on bruising, are to be avoided.

Another point to be borne in mind is that all plants of this kind readily undergo decomposition, and are therefore to be eaten as fresh as possible.

Growing Old Gracefully.

The Lord helping me, when I am really and truly an old woman; when there is no further gainsaying the fact: when I can no longer keep step with the music or join in the song, I shall take my seat in the corner "like a little man" and leave the world to young folks. It is the old folks who keep hopping to and fro to the young stores' fiddling who help keep things in an up-war. Why not grow old gracefully, as long as there is no appeal from the cast iron law of advancing years? What if an old captain, who chanced to be riding on a ship manned by a crew of young and competent men, should insist upon flinging them into a corner and running the ship after a navigation chart of fifty years ago, planned for another and a distant sea? What the confusion on shipboard would be in such a case is but a faint symbol of what things are in a home where the old folks meddle and interfere in the conduct of affairs which they know as little as the old captain knows of the new chart and the new sea. I love old folks, but I love them in easy chairs and snug corners, graceful, reposeful and acquiescent. - Chicago Herald.

Some Laughable Mistakes.

One has often admired, on railway bills the announcement that the "ten o'clock train will start at 10:30" and other similar notes; and every one will recall in this connection the old story of the priest who gave out on the third Sunday of Advent, "This being Ember Week, Wednesdays and Fridays will be Saturdays." We remember once hearing at the conclusion of a pastoral, "Given, etc., this year of Our Lord eighteen thousand and seventy three." Then the priest, unfortunately for himself, became conscious of his mistake. He paused, looked, and then said, "Yes, eighteen thousand and seventy three." - London Tablet.

The biggest legacy ever given to the queen by a private person was $1,000,000 left her under the will of a Mr. Noale. Upon the arrival at Balmoral of the telegram from the executor announcing the splendid bequest her majesty immediately said she would not accept it if there were any relatives living, but it transpired that there were none. - London Tit-Bits.

How She Signed the Check.

Among the more recent stories of feminine banking is one of a young lady who, in a fit of abstraction, signed a check, "Your being Bessie." - New York Evening Sun.

LOSS OF THE RAPPAHANNOCK.

How a Burning Sailing Vessel, Loaded with Coal, Looked as One of the Crew, Captain W. R. Dickinson, late commander of the four masted American ship Rappahannock, which was burned to the water's edge at Juan Fernandez on Nov. 10, 1891, came from Valparaiso on the cruiser Baltimore, through the kindness of Captain Schley. With him were his wife and daughters Grace and Bessie, and five of his shipwrecked crew. The Rappahannock had a cargo of 4,600 tons of coal.

"At daybreak on Nov. 9," said one of the crew, "smoke was seen issuing from the forward hatch. The captain ordered this battened down, and we steered for Juan Fernandez island, which we had passed the day before, and were piloted in the harbor by a native who came off in a small boat, bringing two goats and some fish. That night the captain sent his family ashore, the boats were ordered provisioned and the crew took up their sleeping quarters on deck. About midnight the first explosion took place, blowing the top off the pump about the mainmast.

"The boats were ordered lowered, the men got all their clothes and belongings and we commenced getting what provisions ashore we could. At the risk of their lives the crew saved a good many things, the ship blowing up in places meanwhile. At dawn the explosions became more frequent and more violent. Before sunrise a boat with a seaman and several natives went off to scuttle the ship. They chopped a hole in her side, but the gas lifted her out of the water and their attempt to sink the ship failed. About 6 A. M. the foremast and foremast head blew up, lifting the long boat into the air and letting it fall on the galley stove pipe, where it remained, and also blowing the fore hatch into the rigging. Soon after this the after hatch was blown off.

"The natives were then given permission to save what stores they could. Nothing but smoke had poured out of the hold up to this time, when a big flame shot out of the after hatch. The spunkier boom caught fire, and the flames spread up the rigging and out on the yards, loosening and burning the sails.

"In a few minutes the ship was ablaze fore and aft, aloft and below. An hour afterward the mizenmast fell and was followed by the main topgallant mast. One spar followed another until only the foremast and foremast were left. This mast did not fall until the next day. The great mass of coal in the hold of the ship burned with a roar that could be heard for miles, while an immense column of black smoke reached high into the air."

The ship burned to the water's edge, when the hull sank. - San Francisco Chronicle.

How to Sell a Blind Horse.

A story of a remarkable instance of equine friendship comes from Portland. One of a pair of horses belonging to a horse railroad company was sold, whereupon his mate, a blind horse, refused to be comforted and so pinned away that the general manager went to the new owner of the other steed and asked for the loan of the animal for a visit to the stable. As soon as this horse was put in his old stall the blind horse showed signs of great delight and at once began to recover his appetite and his health. The owner of the other horse, seeing the love of the blind one for his friend, bought him, too, and now drives down town with a span. - Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

The Solitary Spider.

Solitary, a misanthrope, a creature whose nook is his while he holds it, and who depends upon himself, whose livelihood must be obtained by individual effort aided by chance, the spider forces us to regard him as we should never think of regarding a bee or an ant. Each time I have had the equivocal pleasure of renewing his acquaintance he has seemed to me a new individual, and one very likely to do some unexpected thing. As a rule no two spiders alike are found near each other. One may find three or four in one morning all living in the same path of the same shrubbery and all decidedly differing. - Belford's Review.

The Harvest Moon.

It so happens that the position of the moon is such that the full moon preceding the autumnal equinox for several successive nights, in the latitude of London, rises only nine or ten minutes later each succeeding evening. This phenomenon is called the "Harvest Moon," from a notion that it is a provision of all wise Providence calculated to enable the husbandman to take care of his grain at night, if there is so much of it that it cannot be harvested during daylight. - St. Louis Republic.

The Ink That Homer Used.

Ink of various kinds was used by the ancients - some of a purple tint being considered the exclusive and for the execution of all royal writings, as it was distinctively the royal color. It is said that Homer's works were written on letters of gold on a roll 120 feet in length, fastened at the intestines of serpents, but were left in ignorance of the method of preparing this ink. - Detroit Free Press.

W. W. Ellis, a young man well-known in this valley, has opened a tinware and plumbing establishment on Napa street a few doors east of the Postoffice. He will make a specialty of repairing and will take contracts for everything in his line of business. Mr. Ellis is also agent for the Gem Steel Wind Engine and Steel Tower, one of the finest windmills ever put upon the market. Nothing like it has ever been introduced in this valley. See advertisement in another column.

The trout season opens on the first of next month, and local anglers are already making preparations for capturing that wary fish. Jack Watt lately received from his old home in Scotland a package of trout flies and leaders, the like of which has never been seen in this valley before. There is talk among local sportsmen of confining him to one single stream in the valley in order to give the other fellows a chance at the fish. Because, don't you know, "no mon" has a show with those flies attached to a rod and line in Jack's hand.

The City Election.

An election for two City Trustees, (to take the place of Messrs. Wegner and Poppe), Marshal and Clerk will be held on Monday, April 14th.

As all candidates must file their certificates of nomination with the City Clerk twenty days before the day of election, but a few days yet remain for candidates to get in.

Under the new election law this must be done, else a successful candidate who neglects to so file his certificate will be ineligible to the office.

Next Monday will be the last day for the candidates for the various city offices.

The modus operandi is to secure the signatures of five per cent of the electors of Sonoma—that is to say, eight or ten names—for any one candidate and then file with the City Clerk to day or next Monday.

It should be remembered also that one of the signers of each certificate shall swear that the statements therein made are true to the best of his knowledge and belief, and a certificate of such oath must be annexed to each certificate of nomination.

To make sure the signatures had better be filed to day. So far nothing whatever has been done in the matter of an election in this city.

No notice by the Trustees, no nominations, no nothing. To use the expression of a metropolitan visitor, this town must be a blank, blankety blank town anyhow.

Chapter of Accidents.

Louis Geronimo, while at work lifting wine casks in Caminetti's wine cellar, last Tuesday, was struck by a falling cask and knocked down.

He suffered a deep semi-circular gash on the chin, which required to be stitched by a surgeon.

Louis Foutts, a quarryman employed in Teague's quarries at Agua Caliente, while making blocks last Monday, had a piece of sharp rock driven square into the eye-ball.

The foreign substance was removed by Dr. Vance with considerable difficulty.

Johnnie Laux, the six-year-old son of Herman Laux, fell out of a wagon last Saturday and sprained his left knee.

Wm. Justi, the sixteen-year-old son of Chas. Justi of Glen Ellen, received a severe injury to the thigh in that town last Saturday.

He came to Sonoma for surgical treatment. The injury was received in a wrestling bout with a Deputy Sheriff.

To Be Tried for Assault on Kill.

Ed. J. Livernash, formerly of this place, but lately of Santa Rosa, where he married the only daughter of Judge Overton a few years ago, will shortly be discharged from the Napa Insane Asylum, where he was sent some months ago.

He is said to have been entirely cured. It is reported that as soon as he is discharged, which will be in a week or two, he will return to Santa Rosa, from which city he was committed, and demand a jury trial for attempting to kill Davis Ethridge at Cloverdale, and for which act it is claimed he was irresponsible.

Enemies of the family have claimed he was shamming, and his relatives will insist that he be given a trial as they desire to see him exonerated by a jury.

Ed. Livernash was always a kind-hearted young man and in his right mind would harm nobody. His many Sonoma friends will rejoice to know that he has recovered from his illness which so sadly affected his mind.

The Umbrella Tree.

The Texas umbrella trees planted a few years ago by Dr. Davis in front of his residence on Broadway are growing rapidly and with their graceful foliage present a beautiful appearance.

The umbrella tree readily grows from the seed. This tree can also be grown from cuttings, and more of our citizens should plant them. The tree assumes its umbrella form without pruning.

All parts of the plant are bitter. The bark with caution can be used as a purgative and antelmintic. The leaves are said to be insecticidal, the wood is soft and light and considered of value for cabinet work.

The Proposed Electric Railway.

E. K. Stevenot, the well-known civil and mining engineer residing in this place, has been engaged by the projectors of the electric railway between Sonoma and tide water at Embarcadero, a distance of five or six miles, to make a preliminary survey. This looks like business.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

County Treasurer Stofen moved to his new quarters in the Court House last Tuesday. The office is handsomely furnished. A heavy Brussels carpet covers the floor and a general air of comfort pervades the apartment. The office is supplied with all the latest conveniences and is connected with the Sheriff's office by electric alarms, which can be operated from several points.

A VERY SINGULAR CASE.

Timely Discovery and Rescue of a Little Child.

Mr. and Mrs. James Warriner, who reside east of this city came to town Wednesday bringing their two-year-old daughter with them.

Mrs. Warriner and the child entered a store to do some shopping, and Mr. Warriner went further up the street. Shortly after, the child seeing its father pass by, ran out of the door exclaiming "Papa!"

Mrs. Warriner, supposing that the father had taken the child in charge, gave her absence no thought.

On reaching the buggy where her husband was waiting she was astonished to find the child not there.

Explanations were quickly made and a search instituted. The surrounding stores afforded no information and Mr. Warriner quickly came to the conclusion that some person had abducted the child.

Conferring with a friend or two who had been assisting in the search he thought to look at the depot first, as the afternoon train was almost due.

Dashing down Fourth street at a rapid rate he arrived at the depot just a minute before the train.

In the ladies' waiting room on a seat was the missing child, lady-like, a little satchel in hand, ready for the train.

No one was near her, and Mr. Warriner in thankfulness for her recovery, took no thought of looking for a possible abductor until it was too late.

The station agents on being questioned stated that they had not noticed anyone with the child, or the child in particular, it setting on the bench quietly as if some one was with it.

Mr. Warriner is at a complete loss to know why such an act should have been committed. He has no enemies to whom he could attribute such an outrage.

The particulars are given as we obtain them from one of his friends who assisted in the search.—Santa Rosa Democrat.

A Much-Married Woman.

Mrs. Fowler, of this city, was married last January to her sixth husband, and strange as it may seem, five of them died exactly two years from their marriage day.

Her present husband has been sick for the last four months with chronic jaundice, and was given up by four of our best physicians; as a last resort he began using Sulphur Bitters, and yesterday told our reporter that they had saved his life, smilingly saying that he guessed Mrs. Fowler would be unable to take a seventh better half for some time to come.—Exchange.

BAKING POWDER.

In the New York Legislature.

The following, taken from "The Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter," refers to a new bill just introduced in the legislature of New York:

"The latest development in the baking powder war, is the introduction of a bill in the Legislature of this State, requiring all packages of baking powder which contain ammonia, to be branded with a statement of that fact in large type on the label.

Now while the ammonia contention is on, why cannot the law give the public the benefit of the doubt? Wholly unprejudiced people are certainly not willing to be misled by the substance acknowledged as a poison, simply because scientists, some of whom are not even physiologists, disagree as to its potency."

A similar bill was introduced last April but it is shrewdly surmised that the influence of interested parties prevented its passage.

The provisions of the present bill are so just that it probably will soon become a law.

This will be welcome news to the manufacturers of pure Cream of Tartar baking powders, the most prominent of whom is the Price Baking Powder Co. of Chicago and St. Louis, makers of Dr. Pierce's Cream Baking Powder, who have always made a strictly pure Cream of Tartar Powder, notwithstanding the temptations of adulteration suggested by the enormous profits realized by a large New York concern which uses ammonia, and advertises its powder as strictly pure, by means of garbled official reports and certificates signed by its own employee, dubbed professor, doctor or government chemist, as fancy may dictate.

A bill compelling alum powders to be conspicuously labeled as such, already exists in Minnesota and it is to be hoped in the interest of the consumer that similar laws will soon be enacted in other states for ammonia as well as alum.

The following powders known to contain either ammonia or alum or both, will be affected by the proposed legislation:

Royal, Pearl, Calumet, Chicago Yeast, Forest City, One Spoon (Taylor's), Bon Bon, Kenton, Echo, Snow Puff, Univalled, Yarnall's One Spoon, Shephard's Economical Crown, Climax, Hercules, Monarch, New Era, Snow Ball.

Earthquake.

Sonoma experienced a sharp shock of earthquake last Sunday morning at 8:30 o'clock. The vibration was not severe enough to do any damage, but frightened many of our residents who had not forgotten the temblor of last fall.

Each season has its own peculiar malady; but with the blood maintained in a state of uniform vigor and purity by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla little danger need be feared from meteorological influences. No other blood medicine is so safe and effective.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Marshall G. W. Sparks escorted Thomas Scott to Santa Rosa last Monday and lodged him in the county jail at that place to serve a twenty-day sentence for purloining a pint bottle of whiskey from a saloon in town. Scott seems to be in hard luck. He was arrested in Petaluma one day last week as the Greenwood murderer.

It was soon discovered that he was not the man and he was discharged. From Petaluma he came to Sonoma only to again be arrested.

Petaluma is to have a silk factory which when finished will be a two story brick structure 180 feet long by 45 feet wide and will turn out 6,000 pounds per month of manufactured silk, giving employment to from 150 to 200 hands.

Everybody knows that natives of Delaware are called the "Blue Hen's Chickens," but not one in a hundred can tell you why they are so called. The epithet is said to have had its origin in the following:

One of Delaware's most gallant fighters in the war of the Revolution was a Captain Caldwell, who was notorious for his fondness for cock fighting. He drilled his men admirably, they being known throughout the army as "Caldwell's Gamecocks."

This same Caldwell held to the peculiar theory that no cock was really game unless its mother was a blue hen.

As the months wore away Caldwell's men became known as the "Blue Hen's Chickens," a title which only increased their respect for the old gamecock captain. The nickname became famous, and after the close of the war was applied indiscriminately to all natives of the Diamond State.—St. Louis Republic.
